Look long upon this island now
Where time has ticked the years around,
Where leaping light runs over the sea,
Where mists creep in so suddenly.

Look long upon this island now
Where white sea horses prance and ride,
To the pluck and the knock of the flowing tide,
Where the sea gull dwells in the cleft rock's side.

Look long upon this island now
In sight and sound of the singing sea,
Move in the wake of memories,
Ere you look beyond the horizon there,
Into outposts you know not where.

Look long upon this island now
Ere time runs out with the ebb and flow
Of the tide as it breaks
On the cliffs below
'Tis late, my friends, the long day falls,
With many voices the sea bell calls.
Farewell, my dears, fare forward, go
Into the sunset's after glow
In heart and mind all truly blest
Knowing well with God is the rest!
